From morn till eve, streams of wine flowed like a fountain from the nos trils of the Horse in the great Equestrian sta tue of Constantine. The mighty halls of the Lateran palace, open to all ranks, were prodigally spread; and the games, sports, and buffooneries of the time, were in ample requisition. Apart, the Tribunessa, as Nina was rather unclassically entitled, entertained the dames of Rome; while the Tribune had so effectually silenced or conciliated Raimond, that the good Bishop shared his peculiar ta.ble--the only one admitted to that honour. As the eye ranged each saloon and hall--it beheld the space lined with all the nobility and knighthood--the wealth and strength, --the learning and the beauty--of the Italian metropolis; mingled with...
