FIG. 26. --THE BURNT SECTION OF THE DAYTON BUSINESS DISTRICT. Fire added to the havoc wrought by the flood, and destroyed much valuable property. This view of St. Clair Street shows how the asphalt pavement was torn up by the swiftly flowing water. At daybreak Thursday morning I found that the water had fallen so that Main Street as far south as Second was practically dry, but the scene of desolation was terrible. The asphalt paving on First Street had been torn from the foundation in sheets. The streets were covered with mud, and huge bars of gravel and wreckage were everywhere. The plate glass windows had been swept from the stores, and the picture of ruin was complete. The situation was critical, as all civil government had disappeared, and after a conference with Judge Carroll Sprigg of the Common Pleas Court and Judge Roland...
