AC3-DL course also achieved slightly higher scores on a knowledge test than students who completed the traditional classroom-based course (Sanders and Burnside, 2001). This finding approached statistical significance (p . 055), suggesting that the conversion of the course from a traditional classroom-based course to a blended learning approach yielded better learning. The initial phase of the AC3-DL (asynchronous lessons) consisted of lessons provided over the Web followed by end-of-lesson tests. The soldiers could access course material and take the tests at any time from any computer with Internet access. During this phase, students learned basic terms and concepts for use later in the course. Students needed to pass each multiple-choice test with a score of at least 70 percent correct in order to proceed to the next lesson. If students scored lower than 70 percent, they were allowed to retake the tests until successful. Students received feedback immediately...
